SOLID COMFORT IN A WILDERNESS

ENLARGES HOTEL AT LOVELLS

T. E. Douglas Building Fine Addition to Hostelry.

To look at the town of Lovells Crawford county, Michigan, on the map one would hardly imagine to find anything there beyond the possibility of a country store, tavern and post-office, and these of the almost isolated style—slack, dirty and anything but comfortable.

Visitors to this place for their first time are agreeably surprised, for instead of such a place as described above, one finds now a modern hotel, clean, up-to-date store, garage and auto livery, a shingle and lumber mill, school and church and dozens of comfortable homes. Besides, here is one of the finest trout streams in the United States. Some of the guests who visit this popular resort claim that the North branch of the AuSable at this place is THE finest trout stream on the North American continent. That is going some, if it is true, and even if there may be a few other streams equally as good, we doubt if any are nicer.

The AuSable draws fishermen and women from almost all states in the union, and many club houses along these streams are owned by people whose homes are in such places as Saginaw, Detroit, Toledo, Cleveland, Grand Rapids, St. Louis, Mo., New York, Boston, San Francisco and other cities, who spend much time at these places during the trout fishing seasons.

There is so much to be said of the AuSable rivers that it would require pages of a newspaper to describe their beauties, and this is one of the reasons that the little shingle town of Lovells is able to support so fine a hotel as is located there.

For some time "Mine Host," T. E. Douglas, has realized that his patrons were deserving of better quarters than he had been able to provide them, therefore early this spring the dirt began to fly and workmen started the erection of a fine addition to his hotel, and now there stands about ready for occupancy the finest hostelry of its kind in Northern Michigan.

With the new addition the hotel will now have available 22 guest rooms; three baths, one a shower bath; a dining room size 21x30 feet, which will be furnished with small and large party tables; a 16x30 foot living room with comfortable lounging furniture and a fireplace, and a 14x30 foot office room.

There will be several toilet rooms and lavatories. Off the second floor there will be a 50x8½ foot screened in veranda. This will be comfortably seated and also sleeping arrangements provided for those who desire the open air sleeping. Below there will be a veranda, size 30x10 feet.

There will be a cement basement underneath the whole structure. Here will be located the laundry, and pressure and hot water tanks, and also private lockers for guests who may desire to leave any of their equipment or other belongings. A hallway in the basement 40x10 feet in size will be arranged conveniently for hanging up rods, creels, etc. and for drying wet clothing.

Every convenience possible is being provided for the comfort of the patrons who come here, and no doubt these new arrangements will be greatly appreciated.

Mrs. Douglas has charge of the dining room and culinary department and her reputation for providing fine meals is generally well known. Nothing but the finest of meats, fruits and other provisions reach the Douglas dining room and these are served in the best of style.

Everything possible for the pleasure and comfort of the guests is provided. Those connected with the institution are pleasant, courteous and accommodating and under no conditions are anybody's wants neglected, and fortunate indeed is the person who selects this place for their summer outing.

Mrs. Henry Lord of Michelson Passed Away.

Mrs. Henry J. Lord, maiden name Ada Lord, was born December 6th, 1865 at Plainfield, Mich. She was married to Henry Lord in 1887. She died Friday evening at Michigan State hospital, after a brief illness. The family had been assured of her speedy recovery and her death came as a surprise. She is survived by six children, Mrs. D. L. Goodrich and Forrest of Gaylord, Hazel of Traverse City, Gertrude, Leon and Eward of Michelson; her mother, of Grand Rapids; two brothers and two sisters, Mrs. Jack Oliver of Michelson and Mrs. Wm. Thorne of Big Rapids. Deceased was a resident of Lewiston and also lived in Gaylord eleven years.

The husband is well known in Grayling and also the son Forrest, editor of the Advance in Gaylord, and their many friends here deeply sympathize with them in this time of sorrow.

CIRCUIT COURT.

All Cases on Calendar Disposed of.

Circuit court convened Monday afternoon and completed its work at noon Tuesday, disposing of all cases on the calendar. Judge Nelson Sharpe presided.

The first case on the calendar was the People vs. George Barber, for larceny from the person. He pleaded guilty at the arraignment and after being reprimanded by Judge Sharpe, was discharged.

Mike Stupake, for concealed weapons, also pleaded guilty and under similar proceedings was also discharged.

These were the only criminal cases scheduled.

The civil case of Rosa Joseph vs. William Moshier as bondsman for H. P. Sherman, in a cause of assumption, was settled out of court.

Five chancery cases appeared as follows:

Marius Hanson vs. Hal Davis, et al. Decree of foreclosure granted.

Derry Bailey vs. Edna Bailey, divorce. Decree granted and maiden name restored.

Hell's Gate Club vs. A. B. Failing, bill to quiet title. Discontinued—settled out of court.

Phoebe L. Johnson vs. Lee & Cady, bill to set aside execution sale. Decree granted in favor of the plaintiff.

Daniel Pratt vs. Mary Pratt, divorce. Decree granted.

The petition of John Luther Woods for naturalization was dismissed.

The petitions for naturalization of Francis Louis Anstett, Samuel Johnson, Jesse Thomas Diffell and Adolph Johnson were admitted.

Boyne City People "Stung" by Showmen.

It appears that Boyne City did not fare as favorably from the circus as Grayling and the Boyne City Citizen comes out with a scathing editorial regarding the fakes and gambling supposed to have been carried on by the showmen. The people of Grayling being publicly cautioned by the Avalanche to beware of possible fakes and short-change artists, and the vigilance of the local police force may have had something to do toward keeping the circus followers quiet at this place. At any rate they were the most peaceful kind of people while here. The following was taken from the Boyne City newspaper:

"Saturday there was considerable discussion about the streets regarding the 'grafting showmen.' Several gambling devices were run throughout the day and evening on the grounds and many unsophisticated (and others who were supposedly wise) donated to the $1,800.00 a day expense of running the show. Some there were who accepted the consequences and said nothing, but others put up an awful holler and were after blood. The latter did not complain, however, until all their money was gone and they had no further chance of beating the man who was running the game. Then when they saw they couldn't skin him out of his money and saw their own hard earned shekels floating away in the possession of a 'grafter' they wanted b-b-b-o-o-o-o. It is needless to say they got nothing—not even sympathy."

The circus exhibited in Boyne City last Friday.

A Preachment.

WHAT IS HOME WITHOUT A MOTHER? When we were little babies, who was it that cleaned us up all neat and nice, then kissed and rocked us to sleep and put us in our little snug warm bed. It was our dear mothers who did all this. And when we were old enough to go to school, who was it who kept our clothes clean and had nice warm meals for us when we came home from school. It was mother who did all of those things.

Now boys and girls, you who have dear loving mothers, strive to do all you can for them in their old age and while they are alive.

WHAT IS HOME WITHOUT A FATHER? The next question is, what is home without a father? If we didn't have a dear old father to toil and work for us, what would we all do? We would certainly fare pretty slim.

Oh, children! Our fathers and mothers are certainly dear to us. If it wasn't for them what would we do? Please stop and think of all these things. When they are feeble and their hair is turning gray, strive to take care of them the best you can.

Handicapped.

Arthur Clements, justice of the peace, was candidate for re-election in Saginaw, Mich. Having lost both arms in a mine accident several years ago, he was elected two years ago on the Republican ticket and has proved an efficient officer. Through the use of ingenious contrivances he is able to turn the leaves of law books, write and answer the telephone, all by the use of his teeth. Opposed to Clements, on the Democratic ticket, was George R. Hensmith, selected by his party in order that he might not have an advantage over his opponent. Hensmith has no legs.

Annual School Meeting.

The annual school meeting was held Monday evening, July 12th, about forty persons being in attendance.

After reading of the minutes of the last regular and special meetings, Director M. A. Bates read an extensive report of the receipts and expenditures during the fiscal year just closing. Such financial report will appear in official form later.

Following the report, Marius Hanson and Charles T. Jerome were re-elected members of the board for three years. The election was unanimous, no other nominations having been made.

Many remarks of appreciation of the work of the present board were made, showing that the efforts and services of these men meets the approval of the voters of the school district.

Owing to the large amount of work that has to be done by the director of the schools, the salary of that officer was increased to $150 per year. Marius Hanson, on behalf of the Board told of the progress and conditions of the new school building, now in course of construction, and stated that Contractor Lathers was making excellent time and that there was a possibility of completing the building some time in October. It seemed to be the general opinion that if this is possible it may be better to delay the opening of school until that time. The contract calls for the building to be completed by December 1st, and the uncertainty of weather conditions and other possible delays makes an earlier completion undependable, and no doubt school will begin as scheduled September 6th. Should there be any change, the public will be fully informed in due time.

Old Selfish.

Old Man Selfish dropped into the Avalanche office the other day to ask us to extend his subscription bill for sixty days. The following conversation ensued:

Editor: What are you doing in town today, Mr. Selfish?

O. S.: Come in to buy some stuff for the old lady, but after I got some tobacco and played a few games of pool with the boys and ordered a box of mail-order cigars, I didn't have no money left. Wimmen folks is always wantin' something foolish anyway.

Ed.: How was your crop?

O. S.: Fine! Biggest I ever had. The missus wanted me to buy some newfangled things for the kitchen with some of the money—said they would save her a good many steps, but there's a piece of land I guess I'll buy instead.

Ed.: Thought you had all the land you wanted?

O. S.: Well, I don't need this parcel, specially, but I reckon the old lady can get along well enough for a year or two.

Ed.: I suppose you're going to the county fair?

O. S.: You bet. Wouldn't miss it. My wife's exhibiting some fruits and needlework, and she wanted to go down and see the prizes awarded, but I told her she'd better stay at home with the kids this year.

Ed.: Did you get that new water-works plant installed in your house this year?

O. S.: No. That was another of my wife's ideas. I reckon we don't actually need it. The Mrs. is purty strong, and she's plenty able to tote water for a few more years.

Ed.: Going home tonight?

O. S.: Nope. Going to stay around and see the picture show. I want to look at Jed Beams' team too; think I'll buy it, and a new gun. The wife wants me to get her some stuff for a new Sunday dress, but the one she's been wearing looks all right to me, so I guess she'll have to wait until next year. Well, so long. See you later. It does beat anything how extravagant women are these days, don't it?

A junk dealer from the middle west had heard that Ford, the auto manufacturer, used tin cans in the construction of his car. He gathered up several hundred tomato, sauer kraut and oyster cans and sent them to the Ford factory along with the request that they be made into an auto. A week later he received a Ford by freight and a check for $9.80 by mail. He had sent in too many cans.

GERMANY'S REPLY TO SECOND NOTE

SUBMARINE TO BE INSTRUCTED TO ALLOW AMERICAN SHIPS TO PASS.

FRIENDSHIP REITERATED

Imperial Government is Willing That Neutral Ships Shall Carry United States Citizens But Not Contributors.

Washington—Germany's reply to America's second note on the Lusitania affair is occupying the attention of the department of state at the present time. President Wilson, as on previous occasions, will consult public opinion before deciding on further action.

The note signed by Van Jagow repeats assurances of friendship and of satisfaction in America's zeal for humanity and asserts that Germany is in hearty accord with the same principle.

Great Britain is again blamed for the methods used in submarine warfare by reason of its attempt to blockade Germany.

Blames England for Lusitania.

The following language is employed to justify Germany in the sinking of the Lusitania:

"The case of the Lusitania shows with horrible clearness to what jeopardizing of human lives the manner of conducting war employed by our adversaries leads. In the most direct contradiction of international law, all distinctions between merchantmen and war vessels have been obliterated by the order to British merchantmen to arm themselves and to ram submarines, and the promise of rewards therefor, and neutrals who use merchantmen as travelers thereby have been exposed in an increasing degree to all the dangers of war. It is the commander of the German submarine which destroyed the Lusitania that caused the crew and passengers to take to the boats before firing a torpedo, this would have meant the sure destruction of his own vessel. After the experiences in sinking much smaller and less seaworthy vessels, it was to be expected that a mighty ship like the Lusitania would remain above water long enough, even after the torpedoing to permit passengers to enter the ship's boats.

"Circumstances of a very peculiar kind, especially the presence on board of large quantities of highly explosive materials, dissipated such expectations. In addition it may be pointed out that if the Lusitania had been spared, thousands of cases of munitions would have been sent to Germany's enemies and thereby thousands of German mothers and children would have been robbed of bread winners."

Definite Offers Are Made.

What Germany is willing to do toward safeguarding Americans traveling the high seas on peaceful missions is set forth as follows:

"In the spirit of friendship where with the German nation has been imbued towards the Union and its inhabitants since the earliest days of its existence, the imperial government will always be ready to do all it can during the present war to prevent the jeopardizing of lives of American citizens. The imperial government, therefore, repeats the assurances that American ships will not be hindered in the prosecution of legitimate shipping and the lives of American citizens in neutral vessels shall not be placed in jeopardy.

"In order to exclude any unforeseen dangers to American passenger steamers, made possible in view of the conduct of maritime war by Germany's adversaries, German submarines will be instructed to permit the free and safe passage of such passenger steamers when made recognizable by special markings and notified a reasonable time in advance. The imperial government, however, confidently hopes that the American government will assume to guarantee that these vessels have no contraband on board, details of arrangement for the unhindered passage of these vessels to be agreed upon by the naval authorities of both sides.

"In order to furnish adequate facilities for travel across the Atlantic for American citizens, the German government submits for consideration a proposal to increase the number of available steamers by installing in passenger service a reasonable number of neutral steamers under the American flag, the exact number to be agreed upon under the same condition as the above mentioned American steamers.

"The imperial government believes

Charles E. Jennison, 86 years old, one of Bay City's best known citizens, died Wednesday night from ailments incident to age, a few hours after Charles Fitzhugh, another pioneer and distant relative, had dropped dead of heart failure.

After trying eastern standard time for a month, the Bay City council at its meeting Tuesday night voted to go back to Central time. The time question has caused a lot of argument and strife. It may be submitted to a popular vote next election.

As Joseph Lutz was about to board a passenger train at West Branch, Wednesday morning, he fell between the coaches. Both legs were cut off and he was hurt internally, and he died an hour later.

The war which has existed for 10 years between the Lapeer Gas and Electric Co. and the Schlegel Light and Power Co. was ended Monday, when the former organization purchased the Schlegel company. The purchasers have issued a statement promising to keep rates as they are for the present.

GREAT VICTORY CLAIMED FOR BRITISH IN AFRICA

GENERAL BOTHA.

London—It is claimed here that British campaign of conquest of German Southwest Africa has ended in complete victory.

All the forces defending the kaiser's colony have surrendered to General Botha, premier of the Union of South Africa and commander of its military forces. Hostilities have ceased after operations lasting nine months.

The captured territory contains the port of Angra Pequena, the first colonial possession obtained by the Germans in Africa.

It can be assumed that in this manner adequate facilities for travel across the Atlantic ocean can be afforded American citizens. There would, therefore, appear to be no compelling necessity for American citizens to travel to Europe in time of war on ships carrying an enemy flag.

Objects to Protection of Enemy.

"In particular the imperial government is unable to admit that American citizens can protect an enemy ship through the mere fact of their presence on board.

"Germany merely followed England's example when she declared part of the high seas an area of war. Consequently, accidents suffered by neutrals on enemy ships in this area of war cannot well be judged differently from accidents to which neutrals are at all times exposed at the seat of war on land when they betake themselves into dangerous localities in spite of previous warnings.

"If, however, it should not be possible for the American government to acquire an adequate number of neutral passenger steamers, the imperial government is prepared to interpose no objections to the placing under the American flag by the American government of four enemy passenger steamers for passenger traffic between North America and England.

"Assurances of 'free and safe' passage for American passenger steamers would extend to apply under the identical pre-conditions to these formerly hostile passenger steamers.

"The president of the United States has declared his readiness, in a way deserving thanks, to communicate and suggest proposals to the government of Great Britain with particular reference to the alteration of maritime war.

"The imperial government will always be glad to make use of the good offices of the president and hopes that his efforts in the present case, as well as in the direction of the lofty ideals of the freedom of the seas, will lead to an understanding."

Archbishop of Chicago Dead.

Rochester, N. Y.—James Edward Quigley, Catholic archbishop of Chicago, died Saturday at 5:20 p. m. at the home of his brother here, Chief of Police Joseph M. Quigley.

Archbishop Quigley was taken ill some time ago. He went to Atlantic City to recuperate and for a time it was thought he was getting better. A relapse set in, however, and he was taken to the home of his brother.

For several days the archbishop has been gradually sinking and was only kept alive by stimulants. He lapsed into a state of coma and remained so until he died.

Grand Rapids Laid Killed.

Grand Rapids—James Vandervell, 8 years old, was run down and almost instantly killed by an auto owned and driven by Mrs. O. H. L. Wernicke, wife of the president of the Macey company, and chairman of the state penology commission. The injured boy was playing in the street and ran in front of Mrs. Wernicke's machine. He was rushed to St. Mary's hospital, but efforts to save his life failed. The coroner may hold an inquest.

A committee appointed by the Jackson chamber of commerce to consider the proposed adoption of eastern standard time, reported Thursday against the proposition. Jackson, therefore, will remain under central standard time as heretofore.

A plan to complete a good road from Grand Haven to Detroit was announced Wednesday. The highway would include 30 miles of the Dixie highway and the 90 miles from Lansing to Detroit for which R. E. Olds offers a reward of $300 a mile.

Peter Guravai, 19 years old, a molder, was drowned in 30 feet of water, and three other Italians just managed to reach shore when their rowboat overturned at Montcalm lake near Albion, Tuesday.

A new city ordinance became effective in Port Huron Thursday which prohibits the use of glaring headlights on automobiles, city line street cars and interurban cars on any of the downtown streets. Every automobile must be equipped with "dimmers" for use downtown hereafter.

LETTER FROM STATE CAPITOL

LIABILITY INSURANCE AS ADMINISTERED BY STATE BOARD A SUCCESS.

REDUCTION IN RATES MADE

State Geologist Completes Assessment of Mining Properties and Shows Reduction in Valuation.

[By Gurd M. Hayes.]

Lansing—That the plan of administering liability insurance under the accident fund of the state insurance department is meeting with more than ordinary success, was made known here Friday following a meeting of the directors of the accident fund. Not only was a ten per cent dividend declared to the 821 employers operating under the plan, but it was voted to write liability insurance from now on at 85 per cent of the rates charged by stock liability companies, which low rate will give the insured both medical and hospital attendance, a feature not before given by the accident fund.

In 1912 when the workmen's compensation law was passed the law was amended to allow employers of labor operating under the workmen's compensation law to have the state administer their liability insurance for them through the state insurance department. Thus the accident fund of the insurance department was formed and Robert Orr, a New York insurance expert was employed to direct the work. Under the supervision of State Insurance Commissioner John T. Winship, the fund has increased in subscribers until now there are 821 large employers of labor operating under the plan.

The first year's operation of the fund witnessed a reduction in liability insurance rates for employers amounting to 25 per cent from the then present rates and the second year in 20 per cent reduction in rates was made by the accident fund. Now comes the plan to charge but 85 per cent of what the other stock companies charge and in addition give free medical and hospital attendance, a feature not before adopted by the state fund, due to the fact the law did not permit it. However, at the last session of the legislature the law was amended to make this possible.

Subscribers of the state fund who do not desire to accept the medical and hospital part of the insurance can have their insurance carried through the state fund by paying only 60 per cent of the rates charged by stock companies.

The report for the year ending June 30 shows that the accident fund has assets amounting to $99,298.79 with liabilities of only $52,330.10.

State Geologist R. C. Allen has completed the assessment of the iron mining properties of Michigan for the state tax commission and his report shows a reduction in the assessed valuation of the iron mines of $1,814,508 this year.

In 1914 State Geologist Allen and the state tax commission valued the iron mining properties of Michigan at $1,572,115, while this year the total valuation has been placed at $97,757,607. The total tonnage for 1914 was 202,000,000, but this year the tonnage increased to 206,000,000.

However, State Geologist Allen says that the shipments of ore are considerably lower than in any previous year. The operators have been compelled to keep their mines going in order to give employment to the men and the output has been piled up in anticipation of a more favorable time when business will bring a demand for the products of the Michigan mine.

In computing the valuation of the iron mining properties the output during the past five years has been taken as a basis for an average and with this has been figured the price per ton during that period of time.

It is claimed by the state geologist that none of the iron ore of the Michigan mines any longer finds a market in the east. With the tariff removed from iron ore it is said that the eastern market is being supplied by the mines of Norway and South America.

According to State Geologist Allen there is apparently an inexhaustible supply of ore in the upper peninsula of Michigan. "No one knows, and it is impossible to estimate the exact amount of iron ore still in the ground," said State Geologist Allen, "but conditions are favorable for many generations of iron mining in the upper peninsula."

The state of Michigan has gone into the bird business and comfortable houses for wrens and martins have been erected on the capitol lawn under the supervision of the board of state auditors.

It is claimed that the martins are destroyers of insects that destroy trees and shrubs and every effort is being made to coax these birds to nest in the houses built on the lawn west of the state house.

Superintendent of the capitol Frank Bennett says that this scheme has been tried successfully and at practically no expense at other state institutions. The bird houses were built by the prisoners in the Michigan reformatory at Ionia.

Superintendent of Public Instruction Keeler at the apportionment of primary school money to be made the latter part of this month would be at the rate of $7.85 per capita and as there are 828,410 school children in the state eligible to participate in the apportionment, the total amount to be distributed among the various school districts will be $6,477,318.50.

This is the largest apportionment of primary school funds in several years. In 1914 the rate per capita was $7.10, but some of the railroad companies that were delinquent in their taxes last year have remitted.

Wayne county as usual will receive the largest share of the primary school fund. The amount to be apportioned to Wayne will be $1,256,439.60, as there are 160,056 children of school age in Wayne county.

Ingham county has 12,995 children of school age and will receive $102,610.75. Kent county with 44,008 children will receive $345,447.10. Bay county has 21,694 children and will receive $170,287.90. Genesee county with 15,229 children will receive $119,547.85. Jackson with 13,873 children will receive $108,903.05. Lenawee county with 11,832 children will receive $92,881.20. Muskegon county with 12,576 children will get $98,721.60. Saginaw county has 27,565 children and will receive $217,454.60. St. Clair county with 15,943 children will receive $125,152.55.

PROMINENT MEN AMONG SPEAKERS

GREAT PROGRAM FOR MEETING
OF TEACHERS OF STATE AT SAGINAW.

PROF. TAFT TO BE PRESENT

David Starr Jordan, Commissioner
Claxton, Governor Willis and Other
Celebrities Expected to Draw Big Attendance.

Saginaw—The Michigan State Teachers' association, which will meet in Saginaw October 28 and 29, will have what is regarded as the best program that has ever been arranged for any similar event in its history.

Former President William Howard Taft, now a professor in Yale university; David Starr Jordan, former president of Leland Stanford university; P. P. Claxton, national commissioner of education, and Governor Frank B. Willis, of Ohio, will speak.

The executive committee believes that the presence of four named speakers with the other features to be arranged later will bring to Saginaw a record-breaking attendance from all sections of Michigan.

John Everett, of Kalamazoo, secretary of the state association, has been in Saginaw in conference with Superintendent E. C. Warriner, of the executive committee.

Justice McAlvay is Dead.

Member of Michigan Supreme Court
Expires at Lansing Friday.

Lansing—Justice Aaron V. McAlvay, 68, of the Michigan supreme court, died suddenly at his home here Friday morning of heart disease. He became ill some time during the night and when his wife went to his bedside at 7 o'clock to awaken him she found him dying. Physicians failed to save him.

Had he served until January 1 next he would have finished 12 years on the supreme bench.

The vacancy will have to be filled by appointment from the governor. The appointee will hold office until January 1, 1917, and Justice McAlvay's successor will be chosen by the people in the fall election preceding.

Justice McAlvay was twice chief justice of the court under the rotation system in vogue. He was head of the court in 1907 and again in 1914.

Justice McAlvay was born in Ann Arbor. He was reared on a farm in Washtenaw county and received his early education in Ann Arbor, graduating from the public schools there in 1864. He was graduated from the literary department of the University of Michigan in 1868 and from the law department in 1869.

High Mark For Auto Licenses.

Lansing—The secretary of state has issued so far this year 99,460 automobile licenses, and before the cut rate season begins August 1, the number will have been passed the 100,000 mark, the highest in the history of the state. Applications are already coming in for the half rate license fee, $1.50, but all applications are being returned, as the secretary of state cannot accept such applications until August 1 and those who are waiting for the cut rates before riding in their machines better save their money until the rate actually goes into effect.

Well Known Farmer Killed.

Ypsilanti—Dodging under the gates at the East Cross street crossing of the Michigan Central, early Thursday morning, while a train was switching, Henry Hardy was run over by a freight car and crushed to death. Hardy was 79 years old and a well-known retired farmer, living at 223 River street. Three children, Miss Carrie Hardy, Ypsilanti; Robert Hardy, Detroit; and Allie Hardy, Williamston, survive.

Michigan News Items.

The state railroad commission has authorized the purchase of the Michigan State Telephone Co. plant at Hudson by the Lenawee County Telephone Co., for $1,500. The Bell company has 23 subscribers at Hudson and the independent company over 600.

GREAT PROGRAM FOR MEETING OF TEACHERS OF STATE AT SAGINAW.

PROF. TAFT TO BE PRESENT

David Starr Jordan, Commissioner
Claxton, Governor Willis and Other
Celebrities Expected to Draw Big Attendance.

Saginaw—The Michigan State Teachers' association, which will meet in Saginaw October 28 and 29, will have what is regarded as the best program that has ever been arranged for any similar event in its history.

Former President William Howard Taft, now a professor in Yale university; David Starr Jordan, former president of Leland Stanford university; P. P. Claxton, national commissioner of education, and Governor Frank B. Willis, of Ohio, will speak.

The executive committee believes that the presence of four named speakers with the other features to be arranged later will bring to Saginaw a record-breaking attendance from all sections of Michigan.

John Everett, of Kalamazoo, secretary of the state association, has been in Saginaw in conference with Superintendent E. C. Warriner, of the executive committee.

Justice McAlvay is Dead.

Member of Michigan Supreme Court
Expires at Lansing Friday.

Lansing—Justice Aaron V. McAlvay, 68, of the Michigan supreme court, died suddenly at his home here Friday morning of heart disease. He became ill some time during the night and when his wife went to his bedside at 7 o'clock to awaken him she found him dying. Physicians failed to save him.

Had he served until January 1 next he would have finished 12 years on the supreme bench.

The vacancy will have to be filled by appointment from the governor. The appointee will hold office until January 1, 1917, and Justice McAlvay's successor will be chosen by the people in the fall election preceding.

Justice McAlvay was twice chief justice of the court under the rotation system in vogue. He was head of the court in 1907 and again in 1914.

Justice McAlvay was born in Ann Arbor. He was reared on a farm in Washtenaw county and received his early education in Ann Arbor, graduating from the public schools there in 1864. He was graduated from the literary department of the University of Michigan in 1868 and from the law department in 1869.

High Mark For Auto Licenses.

Lansing—The secretary of state has issued so far this year 99,460 automobile licenses, and before the cut rate season begins August 1, the number will have been passed the 100,000 mark, the highest in the history of the state. Applications are already coming in for the half rate license fee, $1.50, but all applications are being returned, as the secretary of state cannot accept such applications until August 1 and those who are waiting for the cut rates before riding in their machines better save their money until the rate actually goes into effect.

Well Known Farmer Killed.

Ypsilanti—Dodging under the gates at the East Cross street crossing of the Michigan Central, early Thursday morning, while a train was switching, Henry Hardy was run over by a freight car and crushed to death. Hardy was 79 years old and a well-known retired farmer, living at 223 River street. Three children, Miss Carrie Hardy, Ypsilanti; Robert Hardy, Detroit; and Allie Hardy, Williamston, survive.

CHAPTER I.

At Chaudiere's.

It was at Chaudiere's that Griswold had eaten his first breakfast in the Crescent city, and it was at Chaudiere's again that he was sharing a farewell supper with Bainbridge of the Louisiana. Six weeks lay between that and this; forty-odd days of discouragement and failure superadded upon other similar days and weeks and months.

Without meaning to, Bainbridge had been striding the path with fresh thorns for the defeated one. He had just been billeted to write up the banana trade for his paper. Boyishly jubilant over the assignment, he had dragged the New Yorker around to Chaudiere's to a small party feast. Not that it had required much persuasion. Griswold had fasted for 24 hours, and if Bainbridge were not a friend in a purist's definition of the term, he was at least a friendly acquaintance.

The burden of the table talk fell upon Bainbridge, and it occurred to the host that his guest was less than usually responsive, a fault not to be lightly condoned under the joyous circumstances. Wherefore he protested.

"What's the matter with you tonight, Kenneth, old man? You're more than usually grumpy, it seems to me; and that's needless."

Griswold looked up with a smile that was almost ill-natured, and quoted cynically: "Unto everyone that hath shall be given, and he shall have abundance, but from him that hath not, shall be taken away even that which he hath."

Bainbridge's laugh was tolerant enough to take the edge from his retort.

"That's a pretty thing to fling at a man who never knifed you or pistolled you or tried to poison you! An innocent bystander might say you envied me."

"I do," rejoined Griswold gravely. "I envy any man who can earn enough money to pay for three meals a day and a place to sleep in."

"Oh, cat's foot!—anybody can do that," asserted Bainbridge, with the air of one to whom the struggle for existence has been a mere athlete's practice run.

"I know; that is your theory. But the facts disprove it. I can't, for one."

Griswold was a fair man, with reddish hair and beard and the quick and sensitive skin of the type. A red flush of anger crept up under the closely cropped beard, and his eyes were bright.

Bainbridge scoffed openly; but he was good-natured enough to make amends when he saw that Griswold was moved.

"I take it all back," he said. "I suppose the book-chicken has come home again to roost, and a returned manuscript accounts for anything. But, seriously, Kenneth, you ought to get down to bed-rock facts. Nobody but a crazy phenomenon can find a publisher for his first book, nowadays, unless he has had some sort of an introduction in the magazines or the newspapers. You haven't had that; so far as I know, you haven't tried it."

"Oh, yes, I have—tried and failed. It isn't in me to do the salable thing, and there isn't a magazine editor in the country who doesn't know it by this time. I tell you, Bainbridge, the conditions are all wrong when a man with a vital message to his kind can't get to deliver it to the people who want to hear it."

Bainbridge ordered the small coffee and found his cigar case.

"That is about what I suspected," he commented impatiently. "You couldn't keep your peculiar views muzzled even when you were writing a bit of a pot boiler on sugar planting. You drop your foot socialistism and write a book that a reputable publisher can bring out without committing commercial suicide, and you'll stand some show."

"Call it what you please; names don't change facts. Listen—Griswold leaned upon the table; his eyes grew hard and the blue in them became metallic. "For more than a month I have tramped the streets of this cursed city begging—yes, that is the word—begging for work of any kind that would suffice to keep body and soul together, and for more than half of that time I have lived on one meal a day. That is what we have come to; we of the submerged majority. And that isn't all. The wage worker himself, when he is fortunate enough to find a chance to earn his crust, is but a serf; a chattel among the other possessions of some fellow man who has acquired him in the plutocratic redistribution of the earth and the fullness thereof."

Bainbridge glanced at his watch. "I must be going," he said. "The Adelantado drops down the river at eleven. How are you fixed for the present, and what are you going to do for the future?"

Griswold's smile was not pleasant to look at.

"I am 'fixed' to run twenty-four hours longer, thanks to your hospitality. For that length of time I presume I shall continue to conform to what we have been taught to believe is the immutable order of things. After that—"

He paused, and Bainbridge put the question. "Well, after that; what then?"

"Then, if the chance to earn is still denied me, and I am sufficiently hungry, I shall stretch forth my hand and take what I need."

Bainbridge fished in his pocket and took out a ten-dollar banknote. "Do that first," he said, offering Griswold the money.

The proletarian smiled and shook his head.

The fruit steamer Adelantado, outward bound, was shuddering to the first slow revolutions of her propeller when Bainbridge turned the key in the door of the stuffy little stateroom to which he had been directed, and went on deck.

"Why, hello, Broffin! How are you, old man? Where the dickens did you drop from?"

It was the inevitable steamer acquaintance who is always at hand to prove the trite narrowness of the world, and Bainbridge kicked a chair into comradely place for him.

Broffin, heavy browed and clean shaven save for a thick mustache that hid the hard-bitted mouth, replaced the chair to suit himself and sat down. In appearance he was a cross between a steamboat captain on a vacation and an upriver plantation overseer recovering from his annual pleasure trip to the city. But his reply to Bainbridge's query proved that he was neither.

"I didn't drop; I walked. More than that, I kept step with you all the way from Chaudiere's to the levee. You'd be dead easy game for an amateur."

"You'll get yourself disliked, the first thing you know," said Bainbridge, laughing. "Can't you ever forget that you are in the man-hunting business? Where are you headed for, Broffin?"

The man who might have passed for a steamboat captain or a plantation overseer, and was neither, chuckled dryly.

"You don't expect me to give it away to you, and you a newspaper man, do you? But I will—seeing you can't get it on the wires. I'm going down to Guatemala after Mortsen."

"The Crescent bank defaulter? By Jove! you've found him at last, have you?"

The detective nodded. "I've been two years, off and on, trying to locate Mortsen; and now that I've found him, he is where he can't be extradited. All the same, I'll bet you five to one he goes back with me in the next steamer—what?"

"You don't expect me to give it away to you, and you a newspaper man, do you? But I will—seeing you can't get it on the wires. I'm going down to Guatemala after Mortsen."

Ernie Olson, while driving his mother's Apperson car yesterday, had a narrow escape from a smash-up when he nearly lost control of the car and missed a telephone pole by less than an inch. The young man was badly frightened.

Peter F. Jorgenson received a painful accident when a car containing crushed rock, the same being moved with the assistance of two teams of horses, got the start of the horses and started down the track. Foreseeing what was coming, Mr. Jorgenson tried to unhook the drag chain from the car, but before he could do so the chain tightened and the horses were being dragged along side of the track, and he, himself, was caught in the middle in such a manner as to padly out the side of one leg and bruise him up generally. His physician says that he will be laid up for several days.

Woodfield-Markley.

At 11:00 o'clock on Wednesday morning, Miss Eleanor Ernestine Woodfield, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Woodfield, of Michigan ave., Grayling, was united in holy matrimony to Mr. Leland Stanford Markley of Grand Rapids, Mich.

The ceremony took place at the home of the bride's parents and the Rev. Aaron Mitchell officiated.

After the ceremony the bridal party and guests partook of a sumptuous repast. The table was artistically and beautifully decorated in green, pink and white, and good cheer reigned around the festive board.

The bridal party consisted of the bride and groom, Mr. C. Preston and Mrs. W. H. Finley, Jr., sister of the bride.

The guests included Mrs. W. A. Buchanan of Grand Rapids; Miss M. E. Armistead of Grand Rapids; Mrs. W. H. Finley, Sr., of Bay City; Mrs. Bateson of Lovells, sister of the bride; Miss W. E. Butzer of Grand Rapids, and Mrs. C. Preston of Grayling.

The happy couple, Mr. and Mrs. Markley, left Grayling by the 2:30 train the same day, going south, to call at several places on their honeymoon trip.

Prior to leaving Grayling, the newlyweds were met at the depot by a score of friends and well-wishers, who showered down upon them many pounds of good hard rice, causing much amusement.

We wish the happy pair a successful journey through life. A. M.

Target Tips and Hunting Helps

by Alfred P. Lane

Send questions to Mr. Lane, care of this paper.

F. A. H., Mt. Sterling, Ill.
Can you tell me where I can get the 1 oz. ball to shoot in a 12 gauge shotgun.

Ans. Any of the ammunition companies load regularly the one ounce ball in their 12 gauge shells for use in 12 gauge shotguns.

T. M., Elgin, Ill.
I have a twenty-two rifle and it is loaded. Could you tell me where I should send it to be drilled out again? Also, how much would it cost? Which do you recommend for use in a rifle, greased or ungreased cartridges?

Ans. If you cannot clean the barrel by means of a good nitro-solvent oil and a brass bristle brush, I would send it to the manufacturers or the firm from whom you purchased it, who will be able to clean the barrel unless it is very much rusted or pitted. I would certainly recommend the use of greased ammunition if you wish to get the best possible service from a .22 caliber rifle barrel.

V. T. F., Oak Park, Ill.

1. Can a gunsmith remove the rifling from an old .22 calibre rifle so that shot cartridges may be used? What would be the approximate expenditure?

Ans. He should be able to do this work at moderate cost.

2. What, in your opinion, is the best combination of target sights for a .22 calibre rifle?

Ans. This question is rather too general to be answered definitely. I should say a rear peep sight and a bead or aperture front sight.

A. B. C., Quincy, Ill.

1. Which would you advise me to shoot in my double barrel 16 gauge shotgun, black powder or smokeless?

Ans. Black powder and smokeless powder, when properly loaded, give practically the same ballistic results. It is therefore a question of personal preference governed by expense, etc.

2. How much stronger does smokeless shoot than black powder?

Ans. Three drams of bulk smokeless powder gives the same result as three drams of black powder. Smokeless powder is not stronger than black powder.

3. Will black powder kill at the same distance that smokeless will?

Ans. Yes.

4. Which is the best to shoot in the black powder shells, 3/4 oz. shot and 3/4 drams of powder or 1 oz. shot and 3/4 drams of powder?

Ans. For all around use I should prefer the lighter load.

G. H. Walcott, Wyo.

1. About how fast does a wild goose fly an hour?

Ans. A wild goose averages about 110 ft. per second, which is 660 ft. per minute, or a fraction over 75 miles per hour.

2. Which has greater penetration, 20 gauge or 12 gauge, both guns loaded with No. 6 shot?

Ans. The 20 gauge shotgun when loaded with standard load gives slightly higher shot velocity than does the 12 when loaded with its standard load. The difference is approximately 20 ft. per second. The 12 gauge shotgun will always kill at lower ranges than the 20 gauge, however, owing to the greater quantity of shot.

Diarrhoea Quickly Cured.

"About two years ago I had a severe attack of diarrhoea which lasted for over a week," writes W. C. Jones, Buford, N. D. "I became so weak that I could not stand upright. A druggist recommended Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera, and Diarrhoea Remedy. The first dose relieved me and within two days I was as well as ever." Obtainable everywhere. Adv.

Take Care of the Baby.

Summer weather is hard on the baby. Proper food will prevent many deaths. Mother's milk is the only perfect food for a baby. Clean, fresh, cow's milk, properly modified and pasteurized is the best substitute. To pasteurize milk, place the bottles containing the milk in a double boiler, put in a thermometer and heat until the water is 150 degrees. Then push the boiler to the back of the stove and keep the temperature between 140 and 150 degrees for thirty minutes. This kills all the germs. If you have no thermometer, heat until the water around the bottles comes to a boil, then let stand for thirty minutes. Bottle milk should be diluted with boiled water, and cooled boiled water given freely between feedings. Clothing in summer should be light, and the baby kept out of doors as much as possible, except when it is very hot. He should be bathed morning and evening, and on hot days, in the middle of the day. If diarrhoea appears, the baby's food should be diluted with boiled water, and the amount much decreased. If there is vomiting and fever, stop all food, giving only boiled water, and call physician.

Robinson's circus exhibited in this city last Saturday and outside of making some of the highways over which they traveled, their visit was a pleasure. We doubt if there has ever been a circus to exhibit here the size of this one and that was so orderly conducted. There was no semblance of graft or grafters, no vulgar language on the part of the helpers and in general everyone connected with the enterprise was civil and courteous. The performance was of high order and the patrons were more than pleased with it.

A laugh is just like music.
It lingers in the heart,

SEASONABLE DISHES.

Now that cherries are in the market, do not fail to prepare some.

Cherry Olives.—Put large, dark cherries, cover with vinegar and let stand overnight. If the vinegar is too acid, dilute with water. Pour off the vinegar in the morning and add equal parts of sugar to the cherries; stir until dissolved and place in a jar covered with a cloth and a plate. They will be ready to use in two weeks. The meaty Bing cherries make the best olives.

Compote of Cherries.—To a pound of cherries use a half pound of sugar, the strained juice of a lemon. Wash the cherries and trim the stems, leaving an inch and a half on each. Put the cherries into a saucepan with the sugar and strain over the lemon juice. Put on the cover and stew gently for 15 minutes or until the cherries are cooked without being broken. Lift them carefully to a glass dish and pour the juice back into the saucepan. Boil this until thick then pour around the cherries.

Ham En Casserole.—Take one thick slice of ham, one small onion, one bay leaf, one blade of mace, four cloves, one-half a teaspoonful of celery seed, one small sweet green pepper, salt, pepper and cider. Brown the ham on both sides in a hot frying pan, then lay it in the casserole; add the seasonings, the pepper and onion chopped. Pour over it enough sweet cider to all but cover the ham. Cover pan, bake slowly for two and a half or three hours. Serve with hot elder sauce.

Dorchester Custard.—Scald a quart of milk in a double boiler. Mix two tablespoonfuls of cornstarch, three-fourths of a cupful of sugar and a fourth of a teaspoonful of salt. Pour scalded milk gradually on the mixture and cook in a double boiler ten minutes, stirring constantly. Add the yolks of three eggs, and cook three minutes. Add a few stewed prunes or figs, and finish the top with a meringue made of the whites of the eggs and powdered sugar.

There's not a wayside pool so foul with mud

And every fleecy cloud that floats overhead
So if we learn with loving eyes to look

We shall behold, however much obscured

The clear reflected image of its God.

SUMMER DISHES.

Fresh berries with gelatin make most appetizing hot weather desserts. Take two tablespoonfuls of gelatin, two-thirds of a cupful of water, two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice, three cupfuls of strawberry juice. Heat the berry juice. Add the gelatin, which has been soaked in water, and stir until dissolved. Remove from the heat, add the lemon juice and a few fresh berries; pour into individual molds to set. Serve with sugar and cream.

Any kind of cold meat may be chopped and used in an omelet, or combined with rice and tomatoes, used for a scalloped dish.

Banana Pudding.—Put three large, ripe bananas through a sieve. To this pulp add the juice of one lemon and a cupful of sugar, one-half cupful of preserved peaches. Mix a cupful of bread crumbs with two cupfuls of rich milk, flavor with the rind of a lemon and add a cupful of sugar; stir in the beaten yolks of three eggs and one tablespoonful of melted butter. Add to the banana and pour into a buttered baking dish. Bake in a moderate oven until firm in the center.

Tomato Toast.—Toast thin slices of bread a delicate brown, moisten with hot water and spread with softened butter; place on a platter and pour over stewed tomatoes, and top each slice with a spoonful of whipped cream.

Cocoanut Pie.—Line a deep pie tin

Benefactor of Mankind.
It may be finally said of John Harrison, English inventor, that by the invention of his chronometer—the ever-sleepless and ever-trusty friend of the mariner—he conferred an incalculable benefit on science and navigation, and established his claim to be regarded as one of the greatest benefactors of mankind.

Prolific Ant.
One species of white ant produces 86,400 eggs a day.

with a rich pastry and stand in the ice chest for half an hour. Beat one-half cupful of sugar, the rind of a lemon and four eggs together; then add two cupfuls of milk. Sprinkle over the top two cupfuls of fresh grated coconut and fill the pie crust. Bake in a moderate oven for an hour.

ECONOMICAL DISHES.

In giving recipes to use leftovers it is almost impossible to give accurate measurements, as the leftovers vary from a tablespoonful to a cupful. If you have only a few tablespoonfuls of left-over chicken, mix it with egg and crumbs, season with salt and pepper and form into croquettes or small cakes to brown in butter. These, with a lettuce salad and bread and butter, will make a satisfactory luncheon.

Chicken Scramble.—Into a quart of chicken stock, boiling hot, stir one pint of cornmeal. Season to taste and cook for a half hour, then add any bits of chopped cooked chicken that are at hand and pour into a mold. Cut in neat slices and brown in hot fat for a breakfast dish.

Chicken Custard.—This is a good way to use leftover chicken. Cut off every scrap of meat from the chicken bones and put through the meat chopper. Mix the meat with equal quantities of cooked rice, season with salt and pepper and press together in a round form in the center of a baking dish. Make a custard of two eggs, one pint of milk and two tablespoonfuls of flour, moistened with milk. A few peas may be added. Pour the custard around the chicken and rice and bake until the custard is set.

Griddled Eggs.—Heat the griddle hot as for cooking cakes. Butter lightly and arrange small muffin rings on it. Drop an egg in each, after greasing them well, and turn as soon as lightly browned.

Fish Croquettes.—Take two cupfuls of cold boiled fish, two cupfuls of mashed potatoes, one tablespoonful of butter, one-half cupful of hot milk, salt and pepper, chopped parsley and a teaspoonful of minced onion. Form into balls, dip in beaten egg, roll in crumbs and fry in hot fat. Drain on brown paper.

FOR LOVERS OF CHOCOLATE.

One of the most satisfactory fudges and one that is usually creamy and smooth is: Take a half cupful of milk, two tablespoonfuls of butter, a square of chocolate, a third of a cupful of corn syrup, two cupfuls of sugar and boil to the soft ball stage. Flavor and let stand until nearly cool, then beat until creamy; pour into a buttered pan and mark off in squares.

Chocolate Caramels.—Put two and a half tablespoonfuls of butter in a saucepan and when melted add two cupfuls of brown sugar, two tablespoonfuls of molasses and a half cupful of milk. Bring to the boiling point and add four squares of unsweetened chocolate and stir until the chocolate is melted. Let boil to the soft-ball stage, add vanilla and pour out to harden.

Chocolate Roll.—Beat the yolks of five eggs until thick; add gradually, beating constantly, one-half cupful of sugar and two tablespoonfuls of cocoa. Beat the whites of the eggs and fold into the first mixture a third of an inch thick and bake in a moderate oven. Remove from the pan to a paper well sprinkled with powdered sugar. Spread with a cup of sweetened and flavored whipped cream. Trim off the edges and roll like a jelly roll. Cover with melted chocolate.

Rochester Chocolate Cake.—Cream a fourth of a cupful of butter, add a cupful of sugar gradually, beating constantly; then add two squares of melted chocolate, two eggs well beaten, half a cupful of milk, one and a third cupfuls of flour, mixed and sifted with three tablespoonfuls of baking powder and a half teaspoonful of salt. Beat well, add a teaspoonful of vanilla and bake in a moderate oven forty-five minutes. Cover with ice cream frosting.

Ice Cream Frosting.—Boil to a thread two cupfuls of sugar and six tablespoonfuls of water, pour the syrup gradually over two eggs beaten stiff; beat until thick, flavor with vanilla and spread over the cake.

New Fire Peril.

Birds carrying matches to their nests under the eaves of a college building in New York were blamed for a fire starting. The new art of fire prevention would preferably place the blame on the human agency which left such dangerous little weapons as matches where the birds could find them to carry them to the eaves.

Optimistic Thought.

Where the cause is just even the small conquers the great.

Habits That Induce Sleep.

Workers who sleep best are found to be those who quit active work at 4 p. m., live a quiet outdoor life without overexertion for three hours, eat a light but well mixed nourishing meal of fruits, vegetables, milk, cereals and sweets, and sit quietly in some open air park or well ventilated building up to 10 p. m.

Natural Result.

"How did you feel when you drew up the old oaken bucket?"
"I felt dippy."

Suit for Town or Countryside

Something of boyishness enters into this trim walking suit, with its straight box coat and pocketed skirt. It is fashioned for comfort without any sacrifice of good and modish lines, and suggests the hike and the stroll. It is very adaptable and quite as much at home in the city promenade as in the heart of the woods and over the countryside.

The material is a rough open weave in lightweight woolen goods, and the pattern a small shepherd's check in brown and white. The skirt is smooth-fitting about the hips and cut with a moderate flare. There is a lapped seam down the front and a group of three inverted plaits at each side extending to the pockets. It is finished with a three-inch hem and cut to a scant ankle length. It extends an inch and a half above the waist line and is supported by a webbing belt that fits the waist snugly. The practical pockets at each side are bound with silk braid in plain brown.

The waist worn with this skirt is of crepe de chine with convertible collar, made quite plain. It fastens down the front with quite small jet buttons.

The trim little coat is cut straight, with long revers and collar bound with the silk braid. It also boasts real pockets, bound with braid, which invite the hands to shelter or rest. The sleeves are the long plain coat-sleeve type without braid finishing. When buttoned up, the coat sets well on the figure, smooth about the shoulders and boxlike over the body.

In keeping with this garb a hat of moderately fine Panama weave is trimmed with a brown scarf wrapped about the crown, and plain light brown spats are worn over the low walking shoes. Short wash gloves are the only kind to be considered with such an outfit, which appraises the wearer for the cool, solitary ways of the forest or the crowded thoroughfares of the city. "Strictly thoroughfare" is written in every line of this well-planned and well-executed garb, whether it be the business of the morning stroll or that of shopping in the thick of things, or the going and coming in the everyday business of life.

New Millinery Under the Summer Sun

Whether chosen for street wear or for dressy midsummer gayeties the hat for the heart of the summer has a brim. It may be so transparent as to cast hardly a shadow, or it may be a real protection to the eyes, but it is becoming, which is the first essential of good millinery.

Three new hats under the mid-summer sun are shown in the group pictured here, and they demonstrate the gradations in width of brim that have found favor enough to become established fashions. The hat at the upper left hand is a flat wide-brimmed shape covered with black and white chintilly lace. The black lace borders the brim with a wide flange edged with a narrow piping of white satin. A band of ribbon finishes the base of the crown, which is all of the black lace. But in the brim the black lace partly overlays the white.

The face of an owl looks wisely and approvingly out from its position at the front of the crown.

Just below this novel hat is shown in white a quiet, old-time looking shape is covered with white kid. A crushed collar of black velvet breaks the sharp line between crown and brim, and is drawn through a large buckle made of small beads. Some of these beads are of clear glass and some are opaque white. This is one of those plain hats that is odd and

New Tunics.

Many of the tunics are perfectly plain, others are made with clusters, either of side plaits or box plaits, while still others are plaited all around in the style commonly called accordion plaited.

Tunics may be fastened at the waist line or from a yoke around the hips. These yokes may be accentuated by a shirring of the top edge of the tunic or by a band of military braid. Frequently the yoke is trimmed with small buttons.

Black Fillets Smart.

Black fillet veillings are perhaps the foremost of the many types now in favor. Plain black fillets are a strong feature. Black fillets, with hugh velvet squares arranged in border design or else sparsely scattered over the mesh, are smart. Hexagon and hair-line fillets occupy a good position. There is a slightly increased demand for tete-de-negre brown, taupe and myrtle novelties. New sand-colored veillings are shown for wear with sand-colored hats.

Setting Lace Insertion.

When setting lace insertion into lawn dresses, stitch the insertion on the goods first, then cut the material away, about one-fourth inch from stitching, put it flat into the foot hemmer of the machine and hem. This insures neat, firm work, which will stand many washings. The insertion can be put on in all sorts of fancy patterns without danger of its pulling out.

The Forgiveness of Sin

By REV. L. W. COSNELL,
Assistant to the Dean, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago

TEXT.—Blessed is he whose transgression is forgiven, whose sin is covered. Blessed is the man unto whom the Lord imputeth not iniquity, and in whose spirit there is no guile.—Psalm 23, 2.

Psalm 23 is supposed to have been written after the visit of Nathan to David. The guilty king has found pardon for his sin and here, voices his gladness. In our text, three words are used to describe our offenses against God: "transgression" means rebellion against authority; "sin" is missing the mark, both of God's standard and our anticipations; "iniquity" is distortion, crookedness. Likewise, three words are used to describe God's gracious dealing with sin: it is "forgiven," lifted up as a burden; "covered," and so hidden from sight; it is not "imputed," but canceled like a debt.

Men speak lightly of forgiveness until a deep sense of sin settles upon them, then they wonder whether their guilt may be put away; they no longer question the Bible teaching on the punishment of sin, but find it difficult to believe in its forgiveness. For such troubled souls we have good news.

The begin with the Bible revelation of God is full of comfort for them. He is "the Lord God, merciful and gracious, long suffering, and abundant in goodness and truth; keeping mercy for thousands, forgiving iniquity, and transgression and sin." God was revealed in Jesus Christ, and we knew our Lord's attitude to the penitent during the days of his flesh. The woman who bathed his feet with tears, the shrinking adulteress, the publicans and sinners, all attest that there is forgiveness with the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ.

Peace Through the Cross.

But it is at Calvary, especially, that assurance for the penitent is found. Such a soul will not be satisfied lightly. He demands that, for the awfulness of his sin, some awful reparation be made. But the cross fully meets this demand. God's Son, our substitute, holy and undefiled, hung there, and all God's ways and willows swept over him. Calvary tells of love, indeed, but it also tells of wrath, for the wrath of God against sin exhausted itself in the dark hour of the crucifixion. This is the meaning of the Savior's cry, "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?" Gazing upon the cross, the penitent may assure himself that all that needs to be done has been done and full pardon is provided.

That such provision has been made is further attested by the experience of men. Luther tells us that the pains of hell got hold upon him, but when he looked to the wounds of Christ he found peace. John Wesley, after seeking rest for his soul for years, trusted in Christ and felt his heart strangely warmed and assured. Spurgeon was so happy when he experienced forgiveness that he wanted to tell the crows of the field about it. These men were not deluded; the experience of Luther led to the Reformation, that of Wesley to the Evangelical revival and that of Spurgeon to years of a fruitful ministry.

Sin Against the Holy Ghost.

But though so clearly attested, we occasionally meet one who declares his blessing is not for him, for he has committed the sin of which Christ said it "hath never forgiveness"—the blasphemy against the Holy Ghost. But what is this sin? As the result of careful study one writer gives this definition: "The blasphemous manifestation in word or deed of an internal state of soul to which a man has arrived by a continual resistance and increasing opposition to the clearest and most undoubted revelation of God's spirit; which state, when once attained, is one of contemptuous and malicious hatred of all that pertains to the Son of God and which, by its very nature, is bound to manifest itself as such." We never met a soul, troubled over this sin, who gave evidence of having descended to such depths of willful opposition to Christ. Indeed, one who has committed this sin will not be distressed over it, and the fact of distress is itself an encouragement. Over against all our fears stands the word of Christ, "Him that cometh unto me I will in no wise cast out."

How we should love him who forgives so much! the psalmist says, "There is forgiveness with thee that thou mayest be feared," fear here meaning reverent love. A story is told of General Havelock which illustrates this text. One of his soldiers violated regulations and continued to do so in spite of discipline. Someone asked the general if he had "tried forgiving" the offender, and the suggestion was acted upon. The soldier was sent for, and came defiant, expecting another reprimand. He was surprised when his officer said kindly, "Johnstone, I have determined in the queen's name to forgive you all these offenses." He went away a subdued and changed man and gave no further trouble. May we learn the lesson: "There is forgiveness with thee that thou mayest be feared."

Doing One's Best.

My field may be stony or swampy, my plow may be poor, my strength small, the weather bad, but if I heartily, as to the Lord, I do the best I can and look not back, but keep right on, I am no failure.—Malbrie D. Babcock.

Friend in Need.
Four-year-old Donald was out on the lawn, wrestling with a somewhat older boy, and getting decidedly the worst of it. His quick wit thought out a way to avoid defeat, so he called out:
"Mamma, did you call me?"
Not receiving any reply, and being on the verge of defeat, Donald yelled desperately:
"Call me in, mamma; call me in quick!"—National Food Magazine.

His Version.
"That baseball umpire has revised the old saying."
"What's that?"
"He says you can't touch a pitcher without being reviled."

But even at that, what our neighbors think about us isn't apt to be very far out of the way.

A hit in time may save nine, and a kick unlicked may save a fine.

The Effects of Opiates.

THAT INFANTS are peculiarly susceptible to opium and its various preparations, all of which are narcotic, is well known. Even in the smallest doses, if continued, these opiates cause changes in the functions and growth of the cells which are likely to become permanent, causing imbecility, mental perversion, a craving for alcohol or narcotics in later life. Nervous diseases, such as intractable nervous dyspepsia and lack of sleeping powers are a result of doing with opiates or narcotics to keep children quiet in their infancy. The rule among physicians is that children should never receive opiates in the smallest doses for more than a day at a time, and only then if unavoidable.

The administration of Anodynes, Drops, Cordials, Soothing Syrups and other narcotics to children by any but a physician cannot be too strongly decried, and the druggist should not be a party to it. Children who are ill need the attention of a physician, and it is nothing less than a crime to dose them willfully with narcotics. Castoria contains no narcotics if it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Genuine Castoria always bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

Sandstorm Smith Was Reassured.
"Say, looky yur!" snarled Sandstorm Smith, the widely-known Oklahoma, emerging from the elevator in a Kansas City hotel five minutes after he had apparently retired to his room for the night. "Who in the blazes is that cuss in the next room to mine?"

"A guest who was in an automobile accident this afternoon," replied the clerk. "The gasoline caught fire and burned him pretty badly. I am sorry his groans disturbed you, but—"

"Aw, that's all right!" I thought it was one of them infernal cabaret performers practicing on an accordion."

It Didn't Work.
The crowded car was overflowing. "Get off the step," the conductor cried. "I've got to shut the door."

"Don't mind me," replied the man on the step. "Close it if you like. It's true that I have a couple of sample packages of dynamite in my overcoat pockets and the windows might be broken and the roof blown off, but don't hesitate on my account. I haven't many friends; anyway, and I don't think many would sorrow over my early demise. Go ahead and close your door."

Then the conductor closed it.

No War This Time.
Critical Husband—This beef isn't fit to eat.
Wife—Well, I told the butcher that if it wasn't good I would send you around to his shop to give him a thrashing; and I hope you'll take someone with you, for he looked pretty fierce, and I didn't like the way he handled his big knife.

Husband—Humph! Oh, well, I must say I've seen worse meat than this.

Nobody knows as much about rearing children as the old maid sister of their mother.

His Views.
Breaking away from the house, the man hurried to his club, dropped into a chair, and breathed a long sigh of relief. He had at last got away from one aunt, three cousins and two second cousins, up-country guests of his wife.

A member sitting near laid aside his paper and asked: "How do you stand on the subject of foreign relations?"

"That is a fair question," returned the other, "and deserves a fair answer. In principle and practice you can put me down as favoring their internment in Scholastic county seven days a week for 52 weeks each year until 1963."

Candy Relieves Fatigue.
The value of candy is recognized by military authorities. The British soldier in France was reported as consuming "prodigious quantities of sweets." A captain at the front with the British army reports that the canteen has "five times the demand for sweets that was expected, and one-fifth the demand for beer."

The Australians encamped in Egypt have eaten all the chocolate to be had in Cairo. Scientists contend the sugar has much food value and is a good substitute for alcohol. Chocolate, for example, is harmlessly stimulating. Soldiers have discovered what scientists knew before, that sugar will relieve fatigue quickly and give a sense of strength that is real without the subsequent depression experienced by those who use spirits. Sugar and candies are found to be useful not only to the physically tired, but to those who suffer mental exhaustion.—Westminster Gazette.

The Married Life of Helen and Warren

By MADEL HERBERT URNER

Helen Sees Something of the Weakness and Brutality of Another Woman's Husband

(Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"You mustn't repeat such things," reproved Helen sharply. "That can't be true!"

Madel H. Urner.

"I'm going to make my own living—somehow."

"That's very foolish," Helen stroked the hand that had clasped hers. "You know he wouldn't let you go off like that."

"What do you think he said last night?" her eyes ablaze. "That if I left him—he'd never give me a cent. He says that's his hold over me—that I'm afraid to leave him because I can't support myself!"

"But he never says those things except when he's drinking?"

"No, but he must think them. People don't say things, even when they're drunk, that haven't been in their thoughts. Last night he said all women were parasites—that nine-tenths of them lived with their husbands because they were too lazy or too incapable to work. That if I wanted my pay—I'd have to stick to my job!"

"But he wasn't himself," pleaded Helen. "What he did proved that."

Then hesitatingly, "How—how did it happen? Was it right after—"

She nodded. "He came home in an ugly mood. I went to my room and locked the door—but he banged on it until I let him in. His face was awful. I never saw him so infuriated. He always keeps a revolver, but it's never loaded. I didn't think it was last night, until he showed me the cartridges. Even then I wasn't afraid—I suppose I didn't care. Oh, I don't remember what he said—but at last he left me and went back to his room. Then I heard the shot."

She shivered and caught her breath.

"I found him lying on the floor, the pistol beside him. Rosa and I got him on the bed and phoned for a doctor—it seemed hours before he came. Oh, it was awful, trying to stop the blood! The doctor stayed with him until the nurse came, and I—I haven't seen him since."

"Has he asked for you?"

She nodded.

"And you refused to see him?"

"Yes," bitterly. "I never want to see him again."

"Don't you think that's rather hard?"

"You wouldn't think so if you knew."

A tap on the door and the nurse entered.

"Mrs. Colburn, your husband keeps calling for you. He's exciting himself and his fever's very high. Won't you come just for a moment?"

"Oh, I can't," recoilingly. "I can't! Don't ask me."

"I think you should," urged Helen.

A moment's silent struggle with her bitterness and outraged pride, then with slow reluctance Mrs. Colburn rose to follow the nurse.

"Don't go," appealingly to Helen.

"Wait for me."

Drawing a chair to the shaded light, Helen took up a book. But she could not read; she was picturing the scene in that other room.

Fifteen minutes—a half hour passed. Then the nurse came in.

"He's sleeping now. Mrs. Colburn wants you to come to the door."

Helen followed her across the hall to the darkened room. Mrs. Colburn was sitting by the bed, fearing to move lest she awaken her husband, who was now sleeping quietly, one of her hands tightly clasped in his.

Her whole face had softened. She smiled up at Helen, a tremulous uncertainty smile, that seemed to acknowledge her weakness, the weakness of love—not of dependency.

Very gently Helen closed the door, and, knowing that she was now no longer needed, went down to her own apartment.

On the hall rack hung one of Warren's overcoats. With a rush of emotional tenderness she buried her face in its rough folds, which held the faint man odor of tobacco and downtown soot.

How fine and strong and dependable Warren was! How trivial his faults of irritability and temper now seemed. How much she had—how much more than that poor little woman upstairs!

From the wide flap pocket she had drawn out a heavy gray glove. Slipping her small hand into it, she wriggled the long unfiled fingers with a feeling of exultation at Warren's size and strength. He was so big and strong and virile—so wholesome and clean-habited—rubbing her cheek longingly against the shaggy coat. She had never realized before how deeply grateful she should be that Warren was always that—wholesome and clean-habited!

Wounded Soldiers Stop Traffic.

A motor car driver incurably afflicted with speed mania returned to America after a four years' stay in London and Paris.

"What brought you back?" a friend inquired.

"The wounded soldiers," said the driver. "For a man of my habits there is too much danger of getting into trouble on the other side now."

"A fellow simply cannot drive as fast as formerly. We are continually being held up by wounded soldiers. The most reckless driver on earth involuntarily slows down when those poor wrecks in khaki, or French red and blue, or a Moroccan or Indian medley of colors, gets in his way."

"They move very slowly, those wounded men. They will recover, they are able to take exercise; many of them, no doubt, will return to the front, but at present they are anything but spry."

"They abound in all the streets. Every time I stopped to let one hobble past my throat choked up. That was one thing that sent me back home, the choking—that, and the slow progress."

SCANDINAVIAN NEWS

SUMMARY OF IMPORTANT HAPPENINGS IN FAR OFF NORTHWEST.

ITEMS FROM THE OLD HOME

Resume of the Most Important Events in Sweden, Norway and Denmark—Of Interest to the Scandinavians in America.

NORWAY.

The Norwegian cabinet has decided to propose the establishment of a volunteer automobile corps for the army. The present war has amply proved the necessity of the automobile as a part of the equipment of an army in the field. Automobiles have been used only occasionally at military maneuvers in Norway, and the government has rented them at the rate of $16 a day. In case of war all automobiles would, of course, be requisitioned for the use of the army; but automobiles will be of little use unless the officers acquire experience in handling them beforehand. The plan is to pay the volunteer automobilists seven dollars a day for the use of the machine, the understanding being that the owner and his chauffeur are to ride in it. The owner is to furnish new tires when needed, but the government will furnish the oil.

Jaderen, the rugged lowlands in the southwestern part of Norway, used to be famous for the great number of its singing birds in the warm season. During the past few years the birds have been more and more scarce, and now it is claimed that Jaderen has fewer singing birds than any other section of the country. The reason is said to be that they are hunted more relentlessly than before in southern Europe, where they stay during the cold season.

A man at Jelo had about $175 in the bank. But the war made him so nervous that he thought he would feel safer if he kept his money at home, so he took the shining coins and put them into a drawer in his commodore at home. A few weeks ago he came to the sheriff and told him that the money was gone. The sheriff kept an eye on all suspicious looking people in sight, and he finally thought he had struck the guilty party. He postponed the arrest, however, until the next day, and he had reason to be glad because he had made haste so slowly, for just in the nick of time the man who claimed that his money had been stolen appeared before the sheriff with an expression of cheapness in his face and told him that he had found the money—the package had dropped behind the commodore.

That it is dangerous to change the name of a ship in war time is the moral drawn by the Norwegian Shipping Gazette from the attack upon the steamship Davanger by a German submarine. The Davanger formerly was the Ceylon and the latter name appeared on the ship's papers. The captain of the submarine stopped the Davanger and demanded the vessel's name and nationality. He also asked for the ship's papers. When he observed the conflict in names he declared the Davanger not only was sailing under a false name but a false flag. He gave the crew 15 minutes to leave and then fired upon the steamer.

Kr. Pettersen, an employee at the Sarpsborg electric power station, and a merchant named Salid, after a series of experiments covering a long period of time, have at last succeeded in constructing an electric stove which experts have declared to be a great improvement upon former electric stoves. By means of a weak current a large quantity of heat can be produced up to 400 degrees centigrade. The invention has been patented in Norway and the inventors will soon have it patented in the leading industrial countries of the world.

Some statistics have just been published with regard to the enlistment of young recruits for the army in 1913. The district of Fosen was at the head of the list of fresh recruits with 78.6 per cent of the young men of military age. Stjordalen was at the foot with only a little over 60 per cent.

The Norwegian mail steamer Venus has arrived here minus the larger part of its cargo, which was thrown overboard, the captain asserted, under a threat of a German submarine commander that otherwise the Venus would be sunk. This is the first time that a German submarine boat is reported to have permitted a vessel to escape under such terms.

The city of Skien has 3,963 taxpayers. The assessed valuation of the property is about $5,500,000 and the total incomes almost $2,000,000.

Messrs. Storm and Monsen, revivalists from Stavanger, have returned from a trip to Sweden. The result was satisfactory. One of them said: "In Stockholm over five hundred persons announced that they were saved. Several sick people were cured." Monsen used to be a cripple, and he claims that he was cured by means of prayer.

In a railway cut at Lyngjem, Grytten, Romedal, an ancient tomb was found containing a one-edged sword, an ax blade, a twig cut and an ordinary knife blade. The tools date from the viking age and have been sent to the archeological museum of the Society of Sciences.

The city of Stavanger has 14,500 taxpayers, which is 900 more than last year. The taxable incomes aggregate over $3,000,000. The assessed valuation of the city increased from $17,500,000 to $19,000,000 in one year.

Four hundred persons, mostly Americans or former residents of the United States, gathered on May 30, Memorial day, at the Lincoln monument in Frogner park, Christiania, and there conducted the first exercises in memory of the fallen soldiers in the American Civil war. Among the participants were Christian Berner, former president of the storting, and two veterans of the war, Messrs. Grimsby and Grorud. The exercises were arranged by the American club and were conducted by President Blaesund. Albert G. Schmedeman, United States minister to Norway, was the principal speaker. He was followed by Christian Berner, who, on behalf of Nordmands Forbundet, urged that the day annually be observed in Norway. He pronounced a eulogy on Abraham Lincoln and at the conclusion of his remarks a large laurel wreath bound in the American colors was placed at the foot of the monument. A telegram of greeting was sent to Governor L. B. Hanna of North Dakota, who presented the monument to Norway in the name of the people of North Dakota, at the centennial jubilee May 17, 1914.

A salmon weighing 50 pounds was recently offered for sale at the Christiania fish market.

Only 4,800,000 sawlogs were floated down the Drammen river last spring. The output last year was 50 per cent larger.

DENMARK.

Le Temps, the semi-official organ of the French government, recently contained a prominent editorial in which the Zahle cabinet was severely criticized on account of its foreign policy during the war. The Danish government is said to be distinctly pro-German, though it is working for the neutrality of the country. It is further claimed that a powerful party is being built up in Denmark in opposition to the government on account of its foreign policy. The Danish Nationalist League, though it is opposed to the present ministry, points out that the French paper is mistaken as to the main question. With regard to the foreign policy of the ministry, says the paper, there is absolutely no antagonism between the Danish government and the Danish people.

Lieutenant Lund, the aviator of the Danish navy, established a new Scandinavian hydroaeroplane record by rising to a height of about 8,000 feet with his "Maagen I." This is even said to be a world's record for hydroaeroplanes.

Two and a half tons of lard put up in 400-pound casks disappeared from a warehouse in Copenhagen. Nobody can explain the disappearance of the lard. Even the police think it would be impossible to carry away 400-pound barrel without being detected. It is evident that those policemen are not quite up to date. They ought to be informed that it is no trick for a man who knows his business to lug away even such objects as pianos and huge fireproof bank safes without being caught. All that the policeman needs to do is to look the other way.

For two years past the Danes have been fighting the flies, but the work has been sort of desultory. Now they have made preparations for a regular war all over the country. Fortunately the Danes do not need to waste much time making experiments, for they borrow the modus operandi from the Americans. Their great authority is said to be "a professor from the University of Cleveland." But in fact his Danish pupils seem to go him one better in thoroughness. In every railway station may be seen large posters explaining the vices of the fly and giving practical hints with regard to the extermination of the pest.

SWEDEN.

Acknowledgment of the message sent to King Gustav of Sweden by the Wennerberg Memorial association at the unveiling of the Wennerberg monument in Minneapolis park, Minneapolis, was received by C. E. Wallerstedt, Swedish consul. It reads as follows:

"His majesty sends heartfelt thanks for kind telegram."

(Signed), SANDGREN, "Secretary to the King."

The shower of decorations of honor which poured out from the hand of King Gustaf of Sweden June 5 was so rich that the names of those who received the badges and the names of the different decorations themselves would fill five columns of this paper.

There were no less than fourteen different kinds of decorations, and it must surely have taken a heap of brain work to locate each badge in such a way as to please the recipients.

The Stora Kopparberg Mining company has distributed a dividend of more than $700,000.

Bengt Jonsson, a farmer at Little Bedings, struck a "stone pit" while plowing in his field. It proved to be a tomb made out of stone slabs. Two beautifully ornamented urns standing at the south end of the chamber contained the skeletons of two persons buried. There were also flint chisels and chips of flint. The most interesting object found was a flint ax, which was carefully ground. A similar tomb was struck in the same locality two years ago. This rich find will become the property of the historical museum of Lund.

Five Swedish steamers, lumber laden, bound for England, were captured by German warships in the Baltic sea.

Official announcement was made that the German government had expressed deep regret for the attack of Christiania sound on the Swedish steamer Verdandi. Germany declares the attack on the Verdandi, torpedoed by a submarine and shelled by a cruiser, was a mistake and expressed willingness to pay an indemnity.

British Claim to Have Made Transport System at the Front as Perfect as is Possible.

When it is mentioned that 2,000 tons of goods—food and other necessities—are sent every day from the base depots to the firing line of the British army, some idea of the gigantic task of the army service will be gathered.

This enormous weight of goods, says Harold Begbie, comes almost entirely from England, for we are not buying in France even so perishable a necessity as milk. Vast stores are brought from England and loaded into sheds at the base depots.

All day by motor dory and railway truck supplies for the troops are sent out from these base depots to stores as near as possible to the firing lines. And just as reserves are accumulated in the docks, so reserves are accumulated near the front, since an accident to the railways might cut off the fighting soldiers' supplies.

On one occasion there was a delay on the railways of 36 hours, but not only did the soldier at the front get all his food and ammunition, but he did not even have to draw on the reserves I have mentioned; regimental stores were sufficient for his need. Everything goes by clockwork. There is no room for an accident—London T.T.Bits.
